

Unicom can make your office completely portable and accessible to you wherever and whenever you need it.

Technology is critical to you because:

- ➔ You can work as much from the road, customers' locations, and home as you do from your own office
- ➔ Your work team often include professionals who work from their own offices and homes, but are part of your virtual crew
- ➔ You need to respond to news affecting your customers' and your own marketplaces, no matter where you are and when it happens
- ➔ To keep your customers happy, keep their projects on schedule, and keep your own office running no matter where you are, you depend on your laptop, cell phone, Blackberry, iPhone or other PDAs

For you to have access to your entire office and be able to safely and quickly transmit proprietary information over wireless networks, your technology has to be secure and reliable.

Bottom line:

If you ever wished you could carry your whole office with you wherever you go, Unicom's DataAccess Solution is your wish come true.

Unicom can make your office completely portable and accessible to you wherever and whenever you need it, so whether you're at an offsite meeting or production facility, at trade show, or your daughter's school play, everything you need to respond to clients' request, research questions, and move projects forward is right at your fingertips.

Unicom's solutions will give you the portability to help you:

- ➔ Connect to your company's network securely and efficiently no matter where you are
- ➔ Communicate with and send information from your office network when you're not in the office
- ➔ Securely integrate portable devices with your office systems
- ➔ Create a virtual office by joining team members who may not all work in the same physical location